Twelve Students in the Archdiocese of Boston Receive Full-Tuition Scholarships to Boston University
The students were chosen based on academic achievements and character

BRAINTREE (May 2016) - Twelve students from the Archdiocese of Boston were recently awarded the 2016 Cardinal Medeiros Scholarship; Cardinal Medeiros Scholars receive a full-tuition scholarship to Boston University. The Scholars are chosen for their academic achievements, demonstrated leadership skills, and contributions to their schools and communities.

The 2016 Cardinal Medeiros Scholars are:

William Barnard – Xaverian Brothers High School
Ishrat Chowdhury – Bishop Fenwick High School
Aidan Coia – Xaverian Brothers High School
Erin Condon – Marian High School
Samantha Curley – Lowell Catholic High School
Anna Daher – Saint Joseph Preparatory High School
Sarah Golden – Archbishop Williams High School
Brian Harrington – Catholic Memorial School
Carina Imbornone – Central Catholic High School
Emily Masse – Academy of Notre Dame
Nicholas McCool – Central Catholic High School
Meaghan Walsh – Fontbonne Academy

The scholarships were presented by the Provost of Boston University, Dr. Jean Morrison, and Cardinal Seán O’Malley. By the time the 2016 Cardinal Medeiros Scholars graduate from B.U., the program will have enrolled 420 scholars and contributed more than $49 million from the university to the greater Boston area and students of the Archdiocese.
